

Did you know that 1 in 6 people experience infertility?

In recognition of Infertility Awareness Month and National Infertility Awareness Week (April 19–25), we’re creating space for open conversations about fertility and family-building.

For many individuals and families, the journey to parenthood can be physically and emotionally challenging. Through our partnership with Kindbody, you have access to fertility care, education, and support along the way.

Meet the Experts Leading the Conversation

Dr. Aimee Seungdamrong

Dr. Seungdamrong has over 12 years of experience and is an Assistant Professor at Rutgers Medical School. She is passionate about providing exceptional care to her patients.

Katie Hoff, Olympic swimmer

Katie is a 2x Olympian. She withstood tremendous pressure and emerged from years of effort with lessons on resilience and navigating challenges.

This conversation will explore the physical and emotional endurance of the fertility journey and highlight resources available through your employer-sponsored Kindbody benefit. With Kindbody, you can access:

Fertility education and consultations

Personalized care and treatment planning

Emotional and clinical support

Together, we can create a more informed and compassionate community around family-building.
